MAY IS MENTAL HEALTH MONTH

Have you or your loved ones noticed small changes or a feeling that “something is not quite right” about your thinking, feelings or behavior?

Perhaps you have experienced changes in sleeping or eating habits, a lack of energy or excessive worries.

These symptoms may suggest a mental health condition or a related illness. But how do you know for sure? Talking with a professional about what’s bothering you is the first step to determining what’s wrong and taking action to feel better.

Start here:

Your primary care provider (PCP) provides regular care and coordinates the care you receive from a specialist. Your PCP is qualified to hear and respond to your concerns. Your PCP is in a good position to both review your needs and work with you to develop a treatment plan.

You may decide to schedule an appointment directly with a mental health specialist. No matter which type of health care provider you choose to discuss your concerns with, the sooner you reach out and start the conversation, the better.

Need help scheduling an appointment or finding a provider? We can help.

TennCareSelect members can call 1-800-263-5479.
All services and treatment are confidential.

ENJOYABLE WAYS TO EXERCISE WITH

LIMITED MOBILITY

Joint problems, weight issues, injury or illness can make exercise difficult. But that doesn't mean it's impossible. Exercise can help ease lasting pain, stress and depression – even for those with limited mobility.

Set yourself up for exercise success. Talk to your primary care provider, physical therapist or other health care provider about activities fit for your condition or mobility issue.

Ask these questions:

- ☐ How much exercise can I do each day and each week?
- ☐ What type of exercise should I do?
- ☐ What exercises or activities should I avoid?
- ☐ Should I take medication at a certain time around my exercise routine?

Your provider may even be able to recommend services aimed at helping people with limited mobility become more active.

Limited mobility exercise tips

- ☐ Start with an activity you enjoy.
- ☐ Go at your own pace.
- ☐ Keep your goals manageable.

Accomplishing even the smallest fitness goals will help you gain body confidence and keep you motivated.

FIRST VISIT BY FIRST BIRTHDAY

When is the best time for a newborn child to have a first dentist visit? The best time is before his or her first birthday, according to the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry (AAPD).

Your child's baby teeth are at risk for tooth decay as soon as they first appear. As soon as your child's first tooth appears, it's time to schedule a dentist appointment. Don't wait to take your child to the dentist until they have pain or an emergency.

But with proper care started early enough, tooth decay in children is very preventable. On average, it's also much less expensive than waiting until age 4 or 5. Cavities are very expensive to fix.

A dental visit before age 1 will allow the dentist to assess the risk of your child developing tooth decay. It also gives the parents a chance to discuss many other oral health concerns with the dentist, such as:

- How to care for your child's mouth
- Teething
- Proper use of fluoride
- How to prevent accidents

Be sure to look for a pediatric dentist. That is a dentist skilled at working with children and infants.

Know Your Diabetes ABCs

Ask your health care team to help you set and reach goals to manage your blood sugar, blood pressure, and cholesterol—also known as the ABCs of diabetes.

A for the A1C test

The A1C test shows you what your blood glucose has been over the last 2 to 3 months. The A1C goal for many people is below 7. But your health care provider might set different goals for you.

B for Blood pressure

High blood pressure causes heart disease. The blood pressure goal for most people with diabetes is below 140/90. It may be different for you. Ask what your goal should be.

C for Cholesterol

LDL or “bad” cholesterol builds up and clogs your blood vessels. HDL or “good” cholesterol helps remove the “bad” cholesterol from your blood vessels. Ask what your cholesterol numbers should be.

ASTHMA BASICS FOR PARENTS

Caring for a child with asthma can be scary. But the better you understand your child's asthma diagnosis, the more you can do to help your child stay healthy and prevent flare-ups. Work closely with your child's health care provider to stay informed. Here are answers to three common questions parents have:

1 How can symptoms be controlled at school or away from home?

Make sure that other caregivers—teachers, coaches, day care providers, relatives, and so on—understand your child's condition. They are an important part of your child's asthma management team. Provide every adult in your child's life with a copy of his or her asthma action plan.

2 Should my child exercise?

Once a child's asthma is controlled, (usually with the help of proper medicines) exercise should become part of his or her daily activities. Children with asthma certainly can excel in athletics.

3 Will my child outgrow his/her asthma?

Children often don't outgrow asthma. A child's asthma can get better or worse over time. Some very young children with asthma may get much better as they (and their lungs) grow. For most, asthma is present the rest of their lives.

An ongoing relationship is key to deciding what will work best for your child, now and throughout childhood.

Treat and Control Asthma Symptoms with Medicines

Asthma medicines can save your life – and let you live an active life in spite of your asthma. There are two parts to treating asthma with medicines.

- 1. Control asthma over the long term. Many people take controller medicine every day, even when they don't have symptoms. This helps to reduce the swelling of the airways and prevent attacks.
- 2. Treat asthma attacks. Quick-relief medicines are used for asthma attacks. Overuse of quick-relief medicine can be harmful. If you need to use the quick-relief inhaler more often than usual, talk to your health care provider. This may be a sign that your asthma is not controlled and can cause problems.

Your asthma action plan tells you which medicine to take. It also helps you track your symptoms and know how well the treatment is working. Your provider may adjust your medicines depending on how well your asthma is controlled.

Don't run out of asthma medicine

- ☐ Talk with your provider or pharmacist about how long your medicine will last, and use a calendar or day planner to remind yourself to get new medicine.
- ☐ Get your refill before your supply runs out.
- ☐ Ask your pharmacist to give you a phone call a few days before you need to refill your prescription.

- ☐ Less expensive than other services to treat the condition

TennCare will pay

If you can get the care you need at a facility for less than a private nurse at home, that’s the amount TennCare will cover. You will have a choice to:

- ☐ Receive care at the facility or
- ☐ Get care at home and pay for the amount above what TennCare covers

VACCINE SAFETY: HAVE THE FACTS

With so much information—and sometimes incorrect information—available today, learning the facts before making health decisions for your children is very important.

Myth: Vaccines cause autism.

Fact: There is no link between vaccines and autism.

Myth: My child's immune system can't handle so many shots.

Fact: Children are exposed to hundreds of viruses and bacteria during normal activities like eating and playing. Getting vaccines is no extra burden on the immune system – even for babies. Getting combination vaccines, like MMR (that protects against measles, mumps, and rubella), or getting multiple shots during one visit is very safe.

Myth: It's safe to space out vaccinations.

Fact: Skipping or delaying shots leaves your child at risk of catching serious diseases at younger ages – when these diseases are most dangerous.

Myth: Vaccines can infect my child with the disease it's trying to prevent.

Fact: With an inactivated (killed) vaccine, it isn't possible. Dead viruses or bacteria can't cause disease. With live vaccines, some children get what appears to be a mild case of disease (for example, what looks like a measles or chickenpox rash, but with only a few spots). This isn't harmful, and can actually show that the vaccine is working.

No Referral is Needed to Get Women's Health Services

TennCare covers some health care services that are special for women. These services include pregnancy care and "well-woman" checkups (such as PAP smears and mammograms).

You can get these services from your Primary Care Provider (PCP), or from a specialist called an Obstetrician/Gynecologist. This kind of specialist is sometimes called an OB/GYN.

You do not have to see your PCP first to go to an OB/GYN. But, the OB/GYN must still be in the TennCare Select Provider Network so that TennCare will pay for the services.

To find a PCP or an OB/GYN in your network, go online at bluecare.bcbst.com:

- 📍 Click on Find a doctor and follow the directions.
- 📍 Or login to your BlueAccessSM account for more detailed information, like patient review and quality scores.

If you do not have web access, call Customer Service at 1-800-263-5479.

You Can Get a Second Opinion

Most of us want to know as much as we can about our health. Sometimes that means getting a new point of view. If you would like a second opinion, we will help you get one from an in-network provider.

Or we can arrange for the second opinion outside the network. Second opinions from health care providers outside the network are the same cost as in-network health care providers.

Need help with a second opinion?
Call the Customer Service number on your member ID card.
