FREE Web-Based Training for Child Welfare and Behavioral Health Providers Focused on Children and Families

The State of Tennessee is promoting free training for child welfare and mental health professionals to help assist with adoption counseling. The training, put on by the National Training Initiative through the end of September, is entirely online and approved for 25-30 free NASW CEUs.

The National Adoption Competency Mental Health Training Initiative movement is a system-wide effort to train child welfare and mental health professionals in California, Illinois, Maine, Minnesota, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Washington and Cherokee Nation. It's designed to increase understanding of the complex mental health needs of children, youth and families moving toward or having achieved permanency through adoption and guardianship.

Please take a sneak peek at the curriculum and enroll today. The only thing you need to participate is a computer and a desire to add to your professional toolkit.
